Midlothian IJB Directions 2022-23

DIRECTIONS TO MIDLOTHIAN COUNCIL AND NHS Lothian 2022-23
(ISSUED UNDER SECTIONS 26-28 OF THE PUBLIC BODIES (JOINT WORKING) (SCOTLAND) ACT 2014)

1. Introduction

The Midlothian IJB is now entering the eighth year of its existence. The new governance arrangements are fully established, and good progress continues to be made on integrating management arrangements and frontline services. The programme of redesign of Health and Social Care in Midlothian is outlined in the new three-year Strategic Commissioning Plan 2022-25 which continues to have a strong emphasis upon prevention, early intervention, recovery, and self-management. However, the context for this programme of change has altered significantly given the legacy of the pandemic over the past two years. Additionally, looking ahead, the proposals for the establishment of a national care service creates some uncertainty about the longer-term governance arrangements for health and social care. Directions have an important role to play in providing clarity and a detailed programme of change despite these external factors which are outwith the control of the IJB.

2. Strategic Aims and Underpinning Directions

The Midlothian IJB Strategic Commissioning Plan 2022-25 has now been approved and published. Its key aims are to

- Increase people's support and opportunities to stay well, prevent ill or worsening health, and plan ahead
- Enable more people to get support, treatment and care in community and home-based settings
- Increase people's choice and control over their support and services
- Support more people with rehabilitation and recovery
- Improve our ability to promote and protect people's human rights, including social and economic rights and meet our duties under human rights law, through our services and support
- Expand our joint working, integration of services, and partnership work with primary care, third sector organisations, providers, unpaid carers, and communities to better meet people's needs

Appendix 1

In order to achieve these aims, the Partnership is investing heavily in a programme of Outcome Mapping to strengthen its ability to evaluate the impact of the strategy, and the resultant wide-ranging portfolio of services, in improving the health and wellbeing outcomes of the population of Midlothian.

The attached Directions are intended to provide clarity regarding the key changes to be made in those services delegated to the IJB. There are a number of service redesign objectives which are relevant across a number of areas. These cross-cutting and significant drivers for change include the frailty programme; the development of a falls programme; and the application of digital solutions through the developing Digital Programme Board. Only a small portion of the Public Health budget is delegated to the IJB and yet the objective of a strong programme of prevention and screening is dependent upon the skills and resources within Public Health. As such, we are very committed to strengthening our joint working in this area. Good quality housing tailored to the needs of people with physical and mental health needs or disabilities is crucial to enabling people to manage as independently as possible. The plans to achieve this are laid out in the Housing Contribution Statement provided as an appendix to the Strategic Plan and are not included in the attached set of Directions.

3. Policy Context

National Guidance: The Public Bodies (Joint Working) (Scotland) Act 2014 places a duty on Integration Authorities to develop a Strategic Plan for integrated functions and budgets under their control. Integration Authorities are also required to issue Directions-in our case to NHS Lothian and Midlothian Council - specifying key changes which need to be put in place to implement the Strategic Plan and stipulating how the partners must spend the budgets allocated to them by the IJB.

Midlothian Policy: Midlothian IJB approved its Directions Policy on 10th December 2015. This policy stipulates that Directions will be issued for all the functions that have been delegated to the IJB and that these will show the disposition of all the resources allocated to it. It was also noted that monitoring systems for the delivery of Directions will be required by the IJB and by NHS Lothian and Midlothian Council.

Midlothian IJB's Approach to Directions 2022-23: The clarity to be achieved through Directions is important in ensuring there is no dubiety about how health and care services are to be provided including major service redesign objectives. The success of the integration arrangements is dependent upon effective joint working between the IJB, Midlothian Council and NHS Lothian and these Directions have been developed and should be enacted in a genuine spirit of partnership. It is worth reiterating that where economy of scale and clinical governance arrangements allow, the IJB intends to continue to move towards local management and local delivery of health services.

The pandemic inevitably reduced the capacity for implementing planned service redesign, although in some respects the crisis accelerated the programme of change—most notably in the development of digital solutions. In recognition of the absolute priority given to responding to the pandemic, the attached Directions are a compilation of those issued in 2020-21; 2021-22; and 2022-23. We felt it was important not to lose sight of Directions issued previously, whilst recognising that the new context within which we are now operating may well require some of these Directions to be reframed or, indeed, revoked. The expectation is that the network of local integrated planning groups will ensure the progression of these Directions through SMART action planning whilst also bringing forward recommendations about any required amendments. Progress with Directions will be reported to the Strategic Planning Group and the IJB in October 2022.

4. Financial Context

The financial context for 2022-23 and forthcoming years remains a challenging one with both NHS Lothian and Midlothian Council facing major financial pressures. However, it is also the case that the IJB has built up its own reserves, in part because of the very receipt of £9 million pounds to help address the pressures on the whole system arising from the pandemic. This provides an opportunity to make a range of short-term investments to address waiting lists, develop new services, continue with investment in digital solutions and consider how best to support people with long covid symptoms. Two additional Direction have been issued to ensure proactive steps are taken to take advantage of resources held by the IJB.

5. Provision of Directions

These Directions are issued to provide as much clarity as possible about the changes which need to take place in the design and delivery of our services. As further plans are developed new or revised Directions will be issued during 2022-23. For those services which are not covered by a specific Direction the expectation is that NHS Lothian and Midlothian Council will continue to provide high quality services within current budgets, endeavouring to meet national and local targets and following the strategic objectives laid out in the Strategic Plan.

Appendix 1

All directions issued by the IJB are pursuant to Sections 26 to 28 of the Public Bodies (Joint Working) Act 2014 and the appropriate element of the Integration Scheme as detailed below:

- The IJB is constituted under Local Government regulations and, as such, under the Local Government in Scotland Act 2003, has a duty to make arrangements to secure best value – that is continuous improvement in the performance of functions. It is expected that NHS Lothian and Midlothian Council will deliver the functions as directed in the spirit of this obligation.
- The financial values ('budgets') attached to these Directions are based on the
 - a) Midlothian Council's budget proposition of £56,686,000 which has been agreed by the IJB at its meeting on 17TH March 2022
 - b) The indicative 2022-23 NHSiL budgets per NHSiL's March Finance and Resources committee of £92,926,000. It is understood that NHSiL will approve their 2022-23 budget at the 6th April 2022 meeting of their Board. These values are therefore indicative.

That said, and notwithstanding the indicative nature of these budgets, the IJB cannot sanction expenditure in excess of these amounts without further discussion.

6. Performance and Monitoring

The IJB will monitor and review the progress made in relation to Directions via the Strategic Planning Group (SPG), the Biannual Report on Directions, and the Annual Performance Report. Collectively, these processes will inform the IJB on whether sufficient progress is being made on key aims and ambitions, and whether Directions remain meaningful and valuable in the context of a complex and dynamic health and social care landscape. New Directions will be issued where the Board deem this to be necessary through the year.

7. Self-Evaluation

The IJB is committed to self-evaluation and the continued exploration of areas for continuous improvement by undertaking a self-improvement programme. As such, the IJB actively promotes continuing work in the redesign of health and social care and expects all services to commit to regular self-assessment, reflection, evaluation, and learning.

Appendix 1

While the IJB is not delivering a specific Direction in relation to self-evaluation and improvement planning, the evaluation of services remains particularly important during this period of whole system recovery while also embedding innovative ways of working. Service design and forward planning should be supported by transparent self-evaluation and be reported using an outcome mapping and contribution analysis approach facilitated by the HSCP commitment the Outnav outcome mapping software tool.

All children and adults at risk of harm have the right to support and protection. Equally Safe, Scotland’s Strategy to prevent and eradicate Violence Against Women and Girls was introduced 23/03/2016 and updated in 2018 by the Scottish Government and CoSLA. This strategy’s vision is a strong and flourishing Scotland where all individuals are equally safe and respected, and where women and girls live free from all forms of violence and abuse – and the attitudes that help perpetuate it. The strategy covers all forms of violence against women and girls. While the governance of public protection rests with the East Lothian and Midlothian Public Protection Committee it remains a central responsibility of the Health and Social Care Partnership to enable people to stay safe.
